GOHS Highway Safety grant awarded

Health Promotion, Office of : Wednesday July 6, 2022

Georgia College is proud to announce the receipt of a $10,000 grant to participate in the Georgia Young Adult Program of the Governor's Office of Highway Safety. The GOHS Young Adult Program addresses young adult driver crashes, injuries and fatalities and partners with colleges and universities throughout the state to implement the GYAP. This program has proven to be successful using strategies such as peer education, providing educational speakers to schools, and encouraging schools to develop creative, innovative techniques to reduce young adult crashes, injuries and fatalities in their communities.

The GYAP program at Georgia College coordinates events such as ThinkFast trivia, highway safety days, alcohol prevention programs and DUI prevention.

The grant year for this award will be October 1 of 2021 to September 30 of 2022. For more information on this grant program, contact GOHS at 404-656-6996 and for more information on GOHS and its other highway safety programs, visit www.gahighwaysafety.org.

Look for ThinkFast Trivia later in August!

Bee Well Clinic Update

Continuing & Professional Education : Friday July 8, 2022

In yesterday's edition of the Union Recorder, there was an article published concerning the Bee Well Clinic - Baldwin County School's school-based healthcare clinic. This article begins by saying that the Baldwin County Commissioners have agreed to become the fiscal agent for the Bee Well Clinic. This is a totally incorrect statement.

The Bee Well Clinic is funded through a 2.3 million dollar federal grant called Wrap Around Baldwin. This grant is an agreement through Communities in Schools Milledgeville Baldwin County, the Baldwin County School District, Georgia College and State University and Community Health Care Systems and GCSU is the fiscal agent. This grant runs through 2023 with an option to continue through 2024 and could be renewable for 5 years after that..

I have asked the Union Recorder to run a correction as soon as possible. We have worked for many years to acquire this funding and build these relationships; in particular our relationship with GCSU.

Reporting Requirements for Georgia College Employee Awards Programs with Monetary Rewards

Human Resources, Office of : Monday July 11, 2022

This message is intended for those who have either established or plan to implement an employee awards program in Fiscal Year 2023 that includes monetary awards:

Each year the Office of Human Resources (HR) is required to review and approve employee award programs that offer monetary awards. The objective is to ensure that GC complies with the USG Incentive Compensation and Rewards Policy regarding the compensation of employees through awards/award programs. Further, HR is required to submit plans to the USG System Office on behalf of Georgia College (GC) for final approval.

In an effort to identify all awards and/or programs that offer monetary awards to employees, HR has created a submission form to gather details pertaining to the awards. If this applies to your area, please complete the Incentive Compensation and Awards Submission form. The submission deadline is Friday, July 15, 2022.

Please contact the Office of Human Resources if further guidance is needed or if you have any questions.

New chair named for department of chemistry, physics and astronomy

College of Arts & Sciences : Monday July 11, 2022

Dr. Sayo (Fakay) Fakayode has been named chair of Georgia College's Department of Chemistry, Physics and Astronomy.

"We are very excited to bring an experienced leader to the department," said Dr. Eric Tenbus, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences (COAS). "Dr. Fakayode comes to Georgia College with a tangible passion for working directly with students in his lab and supporting faculty. He also exudes a palpable sense of joy in his approach to the job. Furthermore, he has terrific grant writing experience that will be useful in this department."

Born and raised in Nigeria, Fakayode obtained a Bachelor of Science degree in chemistry and his masters in analytical chemistry at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria. He got his doctorate at Baylor University in Waco, Texas, and did his postdoctoral research in chemistry at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Prior to coming to Georgia College, Fakayode worked 25 years teaching undergraduate and graduate science courses at the University of Arkansas - Fort Smith, North Carolina A&T State University, Winston-Salem State University and University of Ibadan.

During those years, Fakayode mentored 120 undergraduates, a dozen graduate students, 15 high school youth and two postdoctoral research associates. About 90% of his students were underrepresented minorities and the first person in their families to go to college. About 95% received financial aid and went on to receive Ph.D.s in medical, pharmaceutical or STEM-related fields. Undergraduates are listed as co-authors in 85% of Fakayode's research publications.

As an administrator—namely as department head of physical sciences at the University of Arkansas - Fort Smith—Fakayode worked collaboratively with faculty and staff. He promoted positive experiences for student success; enhanced faculty and staff professional development; and strengthened shared department infrastructures. Fakayode helped increase faculty and student research productivity, conference presentations, community engagement and peer-reviewed journal publications.

He also secured and managed almost $3.5 million in grants that helped support students, faculty development and community outreach.

Fakayode's professional research delves primarily into analytical, bioanalytical, biomedical, forensic and medicinal chemistry. But his interests are broad and multidisciplinary. He likes to focus on chemometrics, multivariate analysis and experimental design for investigating and solving real-world problems. These include race/ethnicity health disparities; drug discovery; natural products and pharmaceuticals; and environmental studies.

“My research is primarily focused on the use of basic and applied study to stimulate interest and promote student learning,” Fakayode said. “The development of an active learning strategy, along with educational and pedagogical innovation to promote effective teaching and learning is important to me.”

Fakayode initiated the use of active learning and Guided Inquiry Laboratory Experiments (GILEs) in chemistry lab curriculum. It sparked student interest, critical thinking and problem solving, as well as developed communication and leadership skills.

At Georgia College, Fakayode sees “many opportunities to work collaboratively with an excellent and dedicated” faculty, staff, students, university leadership and the dean of COAS. He hopes to reinforce the chemistry and physics programs, encourage inter-departmental scholarship and forge research efforts with other schools in the University System of Georgia.

What he finds most appealing about Georgia College is its efforts to diversify and provide inclusive excellence; its preparation of student leaders; its community engagement; and its undergraduate research.

“Meeting faculty, staff, students and administrators has been an amazing and positive experience. They are friendly, collaborative, welcoming, helpful, dedicated and, frankly, the best,” Fakayode said. “I have a good team, and I look forward to working with everyone in the department to achieve strategic goals.”

Fakayode’s particularly grateful to Dr. Donovan Domingue, who served as interim chair, and Whitney Herman, office coordinator for the department. They helped him greatly during the transition process.

In the future, Fakayode hopes his academic and administrative experience—along with his scholarship activity and cross-cultural international skills—will be of value.

“My prior research and teaching experiences on the continent of Africa have provided me the requisite worldview and global perspective to understand the challenges and opportunities of undergraduate and graduate scholarly activities in a pluralistic cultural environment in the contemporary non-western world,” Fakayode said.

“This experience,” he added, “has equipped me with the skills to adapt and work collaboratively, nationally and internationally with scholars of different races, geopolitical, socioeconomic and cultural backgrounds.”

As chair, Fakayode's top goal is to guide student success, expand the curriculum and work with faculty and staff to increase community engagement and partnerships. He'd like to see more entrepreneurship, economic development and workforce mobility.

He will also work to attract and retain quality faculty, staff and students; promote more Research Experiences for Undergraduates (REUs); offer scholarly workshops; and increase grant writing to national foundations like the National Science Foundation (NSF), National Institutes of Health (NIH), U.S. Department of Education, Department of Defense (DoD) and National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

"The department of chemistry, physics and astronomy has a solid foundation, requisite infrastructures and dedicated faculty and staff to promote undergraduate research," Fakayode said. "My overarching goal is to work collaboratively with all the stakeholders to strengthen undergraduate scholarship research innovations."

Fakayode is happily married to his wife Queen Esther Fakayode. They have three boys and a girl, ages 17 to 24. He likes jogging and going for walks. He enjoys a good cup of coffee, nature in the park, rivers and listening to good music, especially jazz.

A big welcome to the new chair of chemistry, physics and astronomy!

Boil Water Advisory Affects Several Buildings on Georgia College Campus

Facilities Management : Tuesday July 12, 2022

Update: 12:00 p.m., June 12, 2022

The City of Milledgeville repaired the water main that disrupted water service to several buildings on campus.

The affected buildings are now under a water boil advisory. Water in these buildings should be considered unsafe to consume until City of Milledgeville water department officials have tested the water supply and can confirm it is free of any contaminants.

Water service has been restored to:

- Mayfair Hall
- Humber-White House
- Harrison House
- Underwood House

The Carl Vinson House remains under a boil water advisory, previously issued by the City of Milledgeville.

Again, water in these buildings should be considered unsafe to consume until City of Milledgeville water department officials have tested the water supply and confirm it is free of contaminants.

For more information, please look for updates at the City of Milledgeville website:
<https://www.milledgevillega.us>

Original Message Text:

A water main break near the intersection of South Columbia and West Greene streets has affected water service for several buildings on campus.

Georgia College Facilities Management has confirmed that the following buildings are without water service:

- Mayfair Hall
- Humber-White House
- Harrison House
- Underwood House

These buildings will remain without water service until the City of Milledgeville completes repairs to the water main.

Once water service is restored, the buildings will be under a boil water advisory until the water supply can be tested for contaminants and water department officials certify it's safe to drink.

The Carl Vinson House is included under a water boil advisory the City of Milledgeville issued previously.

If you are working in one of the affected buildings, please do not consume any water until the City of Milledgeville cancels the boil water advisory.

For more information, please look for updates at the City of Milledgeville website: <https://www.milledgevillega.us>

Sign up to be a GC Lead for GC Gives Day!

Community Engagement and Service, Office of : Tuesday July 12, 2022

GC Gives Day is an annual tradition started in 2018 to send our 1,500 new students out into the Milledgeville-Baldwin community to make a positive impact. Students are deployed to sites on and off-campus for a morning of service, engaging in various projects from painting buildings to organizing food pantries to planting community gardens.

To make this day a success we recruit GC Leads: Georgia College faculty and staff who accompany the groups on their projects. As a GC Lead, you'll get to meet new students, work alongside them in meaningful activities, and have a rewarding experience giving back to your community.

GC Gives Day is Saturday, August 13 from 8:30 AM - 12 PM. We invite all faculty and staff to participate as a GC Lead! Sign up here by July 30, and reach out to emily.jarvis@gcsu.edu with any questions.

Georgia College Leadership Programs to Host the Inaugural TEDxGeorgiaCollege

Leadership Programs : Tuesday July 12, 2022

In partnership with TED, Georgia College's Leadership Programs are bringing TEDx to Georgia College and to Milledgeville. The inaugural TEDxGeorgiaCollege will be hosted Friday, October 21st, in the historic Campus Theatre in downtown Milledgeville.

TEDxGeorgiaCollege will feature eight to ten speakers and performers who will deliver talks on the latest ideas and research, all in the spirit of TED's commitment to "Ideas Worth Spreading." Each talk will be broadcast internationally and shared through TED's global network, showcasing for the international TED community the unique voices, stories, and ideas that make Georgia College special.

This inaugural TEDx event will explore the theme "Power of the Public Square."

"At Georgia College, we believe in the power of the public square," says Dr. Harold Mock, director of leadership programs. "We know that sharing ideas with our neighbors awakens our curiosity and opens our eyes to the transformative power of new ideas. It's together that we can nourish our imagination and redefine the possible," says Mock. "Our greatest ideas are born through dialogue, exchange, and collaboration. At Georgia College, we are a community of explorers, innovators, and doers—united in our goal to serve the public good."

Mock chairs the Board of Curators, who provide intellectual and editorial leadership for TEDxGeorgiaCollege and work to create a vibrant event featuring a range of ideas and diversity of speakers. Ashley Copeland, assistant director of leadership programs, serves as vice-chair, and Dr. Genie Snyder Chamberlin, Alex Gregory Distinguished Fellow in Leadership, serves as executive producer. Additionally, on the board are Vivian Cassaniti, Mary Morgan Collier, and Jenesis Harris.

Potential speakers with an interest in taking an idea to the TEDxGeorgiaCollege stage, should submit their proposals online at tedxgeorgiacollege.com. All proposals should be submitted by Monday, August 1st.

Ticket sales for TEDxGeorgiaCollege open on Tuesday, September 6th. Tickets may be purchased online at tedxgeorgiacollege.com.

To learn more about TEDxGeorgiaCollege, please visit tedxgeorgiacollege.com.

About TEDx, x = independently organized event

In the spirit of ideas worth spreading, TEDx is a program of local, self-organized events that bring people together to share a TED-like experience. At a TEDx event, TED Talks video and live speakers combine to spark deep discussion and connection. These local, self-organized events are branded TEDx, where x = independently organized TED event. The TED Conference provides general guidance for the TEDx program, but individual TEDx events are self-organized. (Subject to certain rules and regulations.)

About TED

TED is a nonprofit organization devoted to Ideas Worth Spreading, usually in the form of short, powerful talks (18 minutes or fewer) delivered by today's leading thinkers and doers. Many of these talks are given at TED's annual conference in Vancouver, British Columbia, and made available, free, on TED.com. TED speakers have included Bill Gates, Jane Goodall, Elizabeth Gilbert, Sir Richard Branson, Nandan Nilekani, Philippe Starck, Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, Sal Khan, and Daniel Kahneman.

TED's open and free initiatives for spreading ideas include TED.com, where new TED Talk videos are posted daily; the TED Translators Program, which provides subtitles and interactive transcripts as well as translations from thousands of volunteers worldwide; the educational initiative TED-Ed; the annual million-dollar TED Prize, which funds exceptional individuals with a "wish," or idea, to create change in the world; TEDx, which provides licenses to thousands of individuals and groups who host local, self-organized TED-style events around the world; and the TED Fellows program, which selects innovators from around the globe to amplify the impact of their remarkable projects and activities.

Follow TED on Twitter at <http://twitter.com/TEDTalks>, on Facebook at <http://www.facebook.com/TED> or Instagram at <https://instagram.com/ted>.

About Georgia College Leadership Programs

Georgia College's Office of Leadership Programs provides teaching, research, and public service related to leadership, citizenship, democracy, and public affairs. With the support of distinguished faculty and practitioners, we educate the next generation of Georgia's leaders for the public good. Our programs bring together scholars and students, as well as business leaders, non-profit executives, journalists, and public officials, and offer a trusted forum on citizen-leadership and pressing issues of the day.

Announcing new Title IX Coordinator

Inclusive Excellence, Office of : Thursday July 14, 2022

We are pleased to announce that, effective July 1st, 2022, Shanoya Cordew, in the Office of Inclusive Excellence, has taken on the role of Title IX and Student Compliance Coordinator. We wish to express our gratitude to Sally Chapman for an outstanding contribution to Georgia College & State University in serving as interim Title IX Coordinator since last Fall.

In the interest of complying with responsibilities under Title IX, University System of Georgia policies, and Georgia College policies, any report of sexual misconduct to a responsible employee must be reported to the Title IX Coordinator as soon as practically possible. This immediate and direct reporting to the Title IX Coordinator ensures complaints are being addressed promptly and adequately, and most importantly, that parties receive essential resources. The Sexual Misconduct Policy can be found here. For more information on filing a complaint, please contact Shanoya at (478) 445-8274, or visit the Title IX webpage - Filing a Title IX Complaint.

Financial Conflict of Interest Policy - Update

Grants & Sponsored Projects, Office of : Thursday July 14, 2022

Georgia College's Financial Conflict of Interest (FCOI) policy has been reviewed and updated in order to comply with federal regulations for Public Health Service (PHS) funded research. The FCOI policy is effective July 1, 2022 and is applicable to all external grant proposals and funded projects.

Under the FCOI policy:

- Investigators are required to complete Financial Conflict of Interest training prior to engaging in sponsored research projects and every four years thereafter. Investigators fulfill the training requirement by reviewing the FCOI policy, completing the Financial Conflict of Interest Training Module offered through CITI, and providing a certificate of completion to the Designated Official via the grant submission process.
- All investigators (PDs and Senior/ Key Personnel) are required to disclose any significant financial interests (SFI) as well as those of their spouse and dependent children related to their institutional responsibilities that meets or exceeds the regulatory definition of SFI. These disclosures will be made through completion of a Financial Conflict of Interest \(FCOI\) Disclosure form:
  - at the time of application;
  - at time of award notice and acceptance;
  - annually each January;
  - within 30 days of discovering or acquiring a new SFI; and
  - when new investigators are added to ongoing research projects.

For additional information, please review the FCOI policy attached below. For questions please contact the Office of Grants and Sponsored Projects at grants@gcsu.edu or by phone at 445-3497.

Boil water advisory lifted for some GC buildings

University Communications : Thursday July 14, 2022

Update: 19:54 a.m. July 14, 2022

The City of Milledgeville has lifted a boil water advisory affecting some buildings on the Georgia College campus.

At 9:54 a.m., Thursday, July 14, City of Milledgeville water department officials communicated that water quality testing has confirmed the microbiological quality of the water in the distribution system is safe for human consumption.

These areas include: West Hancock Street between South Clarke Street and South Jackson Street and on South Columbia Street between West Greene Street and West Hancock Street.

Please note that due to the low pressure in the water distribution system that resulted from the water main break, initial discharge from the tap may be discolored. Before consuming any water, please continue to run the faucet until the water returns to a normal color.

The Boil Water Advisory for the area of West Montgomery Street between North Tatnall Street and North Clarke Street and on North Columbia Street between West Montgomery Street and West McIntosh Street is still in effect. The Carl Vinson House is included in this area.

Young Scientists Academy Symposium

Science Education Center : Monday July 18, 2022

In this six-week Young Scientists Academy (YSA) program, academically motivated rising seniors conduct research under the guidance of a Georgia College faculty member and undergraduate mentors. These YSA Internship students tackle an individual research project and acquire valuable technical and analytical skills, culminating in data analysis and a YSA poster symposium. In some cases, YSA interns will submit their work to national science conferences like the American Chemical Society's National Conference.

Throughout the six weeks of the program, students participate in weekly workshops with the YSA Director who provides insight into the scientific process, research ethics, how to read a research paper, how to make a poster, and how to network in the science and engineering fields. There are also sessions on college admission strategies and programs.

This summer we have seven Young Scientists Academy interns conducting research. Come see them present their research findings in this special symposium. Light refreshments will be served afterwards in the Kilpatrick Atrium.

Contemporary liberal arts: Georgia College embraces its academic mission to meet workforce needs

University Communications : Monday July 18, 2022

Through Georgia College's liberal arts mission, students are taught a variety of marketable skills for today's workforce. They learn to think critically about problems, work in diverse teams, face ambiguity and uncertainty with boldness and communicate effectively.

These skills—valuable in any career—can be transferred across any number of jobs and are useful for life in general.

At Georgia College, those skills provided through a liberal arts education serve as a foundation. On top of that is built the specialized workforce training for students through their major.

"We have intentionally realigned our academic affairs strategy to not only maintain our commitment to the liberal arts mission, but to also identify ways that these efforts can focus on career preparation, workforce development, and as a public university, further economic development," said Dr. Costas Spirou, provost and vice president for Academic Affairs.

"A liberal arts and sciences education should not be viewed as separate from career success. I would argue that the two are not only intrinsically connected—the former can and should inform the latter," he said. "We must be willing to adjust to meet the workforce needs of the state and our rapidly moving world. That's something we consistently ask ourselves—what are the needs of our students and how can we respond to meet those?"

And those needs are ever-changing. New jobs are created constantly with the development of new technologies. Georgia College is committed to staying flexible and dynamic—evolving courses and degree offerings to stay in line with the workforce needs.

For instance, there's a severe shortage of nurses in Georgia due to a rapidly aging population and the retirement of long-time nurses. The pandemic compounded these challenges.

In response, Georgia College added a third nursing cohort to address the shortage of healthcare workers in the state.

"We now have three nursing cohorts for our nationally-recognized undergraduate programs," Spirou said. "At a time when healthcare workers, especially nurses, are highly needed but in short supply, we knew this would be valuable. As a result, we increased the number of nursing majors this year from 112 to 152."

U.S. News and World Report publishes a yearly 100 Best Jobs report. The 2022 report lists nurses among the top 12 jobs along with data scientists and financial managers—two other new programs soon to be available at Georgia College.

“Following a year of preparation, we will be offering this fall two new degrees—a data science major and a finance major,” Spirou said. “Both are in high demand in the job market, and our students have shown a strong interest in these areas.”

The new Bachelor of Science in Data Science exemplifies the cross-discipline partnerships a liberal arts education does best. It’s a collaboration between the College of Business and the College of Arts and Sciences, bringing together a well-rounded experience for students who plan to go into this field.

Technology has been a major focus in the College of Business for some time, but that focus will soon be reflected in the business college’s new name: the J. Whitney Bunting College of Business ‘and Technology.’

“This provides an opportunity to differentiate us in the market,” said Dr. Micheal Stratton, dean. “It codifies an already existing prevalence of technology throughout our curriculum, embraces technology as integrative to the learning experience and makes explicit our commitment to business education that encompasses not only humanistic and quantitative capabilities but also technical competencies and skills necessary for 21st-century leaders and citizens.”

In the 21st century, technology is not only important in business but in our daily lives. Children today have technology at their fingertips from a young age. That makes it important for education students to also stay at the forefront of technological integration in the classroom.

Last fall, the College of Education (COE) launched a dynamic Maker Space. It places multiple new technologies into the hands of teacher candidates, helping them to educate future students.

From virtual reality sets to 3D printers to drones and robotics, Dean Dr. Joseph Peters said he hopes students take their experience in the new Maker Space to the schools where they teach.

“Our Maker Space is a little more on the high-end side because our students are graduating to a 30 to 40-year career,” said Peters. “Schools will start to use more technology in the future, and we want our students to be ahead of the curve on what’s going to be next.”

According to Spirou, “our next step with the Maker Space is to expand its impact by launching a Center for Innovation this fall.”

Keeping students ahead of the curve is key for Georgia College. At the same time, current challenges in our region and state need immediate attention. One example is water and water quality.

The port of Savannah has a huge economic impact on the state. However, the dredging necessary for the expansion of the port has impacted water quality. Almost daily, there is news of quality issues regarding drinking water. Recently, the Catoosa River in northwest Georgia was named a top endangered river in the United States.

To help address these and other issues, the College of Arts and Sciences has created an Aquatic Sciences Center (ASC). The goal is to ensure students are prepared and can take advantage of faculty knowledge and expertise in this field. About one-third of the 28 faculty in Georgia College's Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences are linked in some way to water-related topics.

The ASC has a statewide mission to serve communities and be a leader in issues related to water quality across the state.

"Any sort of center of research or excellence, such as the Aquatic Sciences Center, is unusual for a school our size," said Dr. Indiren Pillay, chair. "But the Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences has a significant footprint on campus—in terms of the number of faculty and the number of students we cater to."

"So, the center is a natural conclusion," he said. "It'll elevate the visibility of the work we're already doing and provide administrative support that will enable faculty to spend more time training and mentoring students in water-related research."

A new concentration for biology majors—marine sciences—has also been added to the curriculum.

These are just a few of the new opportunities available at Georgia College. Yet, they show a glimpse into the heart of the university and how its liberal arts mission drives success.

"Although basic ideas of a liberal arts education began hundreds of years ago, Georgia College proudly reimagines what that looks like for us, and how we can use our liberal arts foundation to better meet the needs of students," Spirou said.

"That's an ongoing process and one that we take great care with," he added. "We are committed to being responsive to the economic and workforce needs of the state, as well the needs of our students. In the process, we strategically reimagine the academic mission and the role of liberal arts and sciences in higher education and our society."

Much has changed since the university was founded in 1889, and indeed, much will change in the future.

Dealing with change is just one of the essential skills taught through the liberal arts. With liberal arts as the foundation, Georgia College will continue to forge ahead, embracing new trends, new technologies, every opportunity and any challenge that lies ahead.

Final Request for 2021 Clery Crime Statistics from Campus Security Authorities

Public Safety : Monday July 18, 2022

Each year, Georgia College releases an Annual Security and Fire Safety Report that includes a disclosure of crime statistics for the previous three years. The institution is working diligently to finalize our 2022 annual report, which will be released by the end of September. These statistics are also reported to the Department of Education.

Crime statistics are compiled from a variety of sources, including, reports from Public Safety, reports from local law enforcement agencies, Title IX reports, student conduct reports, and reports from Campus Security Authorities or CSAs. While our CSAs routinely provide us with reports throughout the year, please consider this a final request for any incident reports occurring within the 2021 calendar year (January 1 through December 31) that have yet to be reported to institutional authorities for inclusion in our upcoming statistical disclosure.

The following is an excerpt on CSAs from the Clery Act Appendix within the Federal Student Aid Handbook:

- While not defined in statute, regulations provide that CSAs include: (i) campus police or security department personnel; (ii) individuals with security-related responsibilities; and (iii) individuals or organizations identified in institutional security policies as an individual or organization to which students and employees should report criminal offenses. The definition at § 668.46(a)(iv) states that a CSA also includes an official “who has significant responsibility for student and campus activities, including, but not limited to, student housing, student discipline, and campus judicial proceedings.”

These designations may include student employees, such as our dedicated team at Residence Life. CSAs are determined by job duties, not job titles. Duties often change, especially amid circumstances like what we have all experienced in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. If you have been designated as a CSA, please submit your reports to publicsafety@gcsu.edu. If you have questions or concerns regarding a change in duties, or your status as either a CSA or non-CSA, please feel free to follow up with Shanoya Cordew, the Title IX and Student Compliance Coordinator for Georgia College and State University via shanoya.cordew@gcsu.edu.

Thank you for your commitment to keeping our campus informed. Please be on the lookout for upcoming announcements regarding this year’s completed report.

New Upcoming Training Opportunity - Battling Burnout

Human Resources, Office of : Wednesday July 20, 2022

The Office of Human Resources is excited to announce the following upcoming training: Battling Burnout - It is more important than ever to recognize the early warning signs and risk factors and learn how to implement anti-burnout strategies.

Burnout is an occupational phenomenon which can lead people to experience emotional exhaustion, depersonalization and reduced personal accomplishment.

Yet, as it occurs over a gradual period of time, it is not always easy to notice the signs of excessive pressure building up. With an alarming number of workers across the world reporting increasing levels of burnout, it is more important than ever to recognize the early warning signs and risk factors and learn how to implement anti-burnout strategies.

How participants will benefit

At the end of this session participants will be able to identify:

What is burnout?

What are the signs of burnout?

Who is at risk?

How to protect yourself.

The importance of the five 'R's.

The training will be held virtually on Tuesday, July 26, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Please use the link below to register for the training:

The Deal Center for Early Language and Literacy Virtual Learning Series: Language as a Missing Link and Missed Opportunity Toolkit - A Three-Part Series

Center for Early Language & Literacy : Wednesday July 20, 2022

While we frequently interact with children, we often miss opportunities to notice the development of language—from infancy through adolescence, monitor engagement as a gauge of language development, screen for potential language difficulties if indicated, and use this information to enhance opportunities for engagement in universal settings. This virtual learning series will provide a new, proactive approach and a toolkit for all who have a role on a child’s path to literacy, paving the way to positive outcomes throughout school and life.

Join us for the Three-Part Series:

July 21—Part 1: Why? The dramatic and positive impact of language development on life outcomes

August 18—Part 2: What? Steps to proactively employ language as a well-being indicator

September 29—Part 3: How? Tools to implement the “why” and the “what” in a manner that is sustainable for individuals, practitioners and policymakers.

Featured Presenter: Emily Rubin

Emily Rubin, MS, CCC-SLP is the director of Communication Crossroads, Inc. in Atlanta, Georgia. She is a speech-language pathologist specializing in the relationship between social emotional engagement and learning. As a former adjunct faculty member and lecturer at Yale University, she participated in multidisciplinary research focused on social emotional neurodevelopment. She is a co-developer of the Social Emotional Engagement – Knowledge and Skills (SEE-KS) professional learning approach, which provides freely accessible tools for measuring learner engagement and enhancing engagement in natural contexts. She lectures internationally and provides consultation to education, healthcare and child welfare systems to support social and emotional engagement, learning and development in universal settings.

Request MSCM Practicum Student for fall semester 2022

Communication, Department of : Monday July 25, 2022

Does your department or office need assistance with communication, promotion or publicity? A Mass Comm practicum student could help. Students in MSCM 2930 can assist on-campus departments and offices with a range of communication projects including: graphic design, short-form videography, digital media management including website content and social media channels, copy writing for blogs and press releases and much more. (Please remember that communication products must be approved by University Communications prior to distribution.)

Mass Comm practicum students complete 50 hours for a 1.0 course credit. All practicums must be completed on campus and supervised by a Georgia College faculty or staff member. Spring practicum requests are due by COB Wednesday August 10 2022.

Weekend of Welcome - Bobcat Marketplace

Student Life, Office of : Tuesday July 26, 2022

Are you excited to meet the incoming class and share information about your organization or your department? You have an opportunity to do so at the Weekend of Welcome Block Party and Bobcat Marketplace! The event will be held from 8-10:00 p.m. on Friday, August 12. Marketplace Check-in will start at 7 p.m. Please plan for representatives of your organization to stay until the end. Each organization will be limited to only 2 representatives. The Marketplace will be held along Greene Street in front of the residence halls.

Please be aware that NO electricity will be provided. Organizations are encouraged to only bring electronics that have the capability of being powered off batteries. We DO NOT provide tablecloths; you are encouraged to bring your own table coverings and decor to highlight your organization. We are also asking that you DO NOT bring your own tent as spacing will be limited. The event will not begin until 8 p.m., so the sun should not be a problem.

Please sign up at the following LINK in order to participate.

For more information in regards to Weekend of Welcome in general, please visit the webpage at <https://www.gcsu.edu/student-life/wow>.

Campus Community Book Drive

Community Engagement and Service, Office of : Tuesday July 26, 2022

The GIVE Center invites you to participate in the GC Gives Day Book Drive! We are collecting children's books (approximately ages 5-12) from July 25 to August 12 for GC Gives Day. Gives Day is an annual day of service for all new students. This year, our Class of 2026 will write encouraging notes in the books to celebrate back-to-school, and the books will be donated to Baldwin County School District elementary classrooms to support literacy in our community.

Drop-off locations on campus:

- Parks Hall 206
- A&S Lobby
- Einstein's at MSU
- Wellness and Recreation Center
- Residence Halls

Drop off your new or gently-used books at our campus locations or ship them directly from Amazon and other booksellers to:

GCSU Student Life
320 N. Wayne Street
Milledgeville, GA 31061

Thank you!

GCREads Faculty Facilitators Needed

First-Year Experience : Tuesday July 26, 2022

Faculty facilitators are still needed for our GCREads micro seminars on August 12th. GCREads is our common reading experience for incoming first-year students. Students will select one of 10 essays to discuss during a 60-minute micro seminar on Friday, August 12, during their Weekend of Welcome. Faculty consistently rate the experience as “excellent” or “good,” and students describe GCREads as a “good introduction to college.” We are inviting all faculty to consider joining us this year in delivering this first-year reading initiative. Sign up here, or please reach out to Dr. Erin Weston erin.weston@gcsu.edu if you have any questions.

Covid-19 Decision Path for Employees

Human Resources, Office of : Wednesday July 27, 2022

As we continue venturing out for the last bit of summer fun and begin preparing for the beginning of Fall 2022, we wanted to take an opportunity to remind you of the existing COVID-19 Decision Path for Employees in an effort to keep our campus community as safe as possible!

If an employee:

- Is not feeling well with COVID-19 (C19) symptoms OR recently tested positive for C19
- Has been in direct contact with someone who has tested positive for C19
- Believes they have had indirect contact with someone who recently tested positive for C19

The employee should contact their immediate supervisor and then the supervisor should contact employeerelations@gcsu.edu and provide:

- The employee's name
- The employee's direct contact information (usually a cell phone number)
- Whether or not the employee is eligible to work-from-home (WFH) if we have to ask them to stay away from campus for a few days following guidelines set by the Georgia Department of Public Health (GaDPH)

The employee should NOT contact employeerelations@gcsu.edu directly regarding C19; it is crucial that we hear from the immediate supervisor to confirm that the employee has made them aware of their situation and that the supervisor confirms whether or not the employee is eligible to WFH. Once Employee Relations speaks with the employee, we will follow-up with the immediate supervisor to relay whether or not we have asked them to step away from campus, and if so, what the employee's expected return to work date is. Testing resources in the Milledgeville/Baldwin County area will be relayed to employees as needed; this information is also available on the HR intranet under the section labeled COVID-19 (employees must be logged in to Unify to access the HR Intranet).

Common symptoms of C19 as outlined by the CDC can be found here. Right now, we are hearing a lot about a dull headache and/or a sore/scratchy throat as initial symptoms of C19; please do not ignore these symptoms, though they are associated with many potential conditions like the common cold, allergies, sinus related matters, etc. When these symptoms turn out to be true symptoms of C19, they often lead to a rather rapid transmission across people the symptomatic individual has been in close proximity to. In the midst of the summer holiday season and with expected gatherings of large groups, we offer a reminder to be cautious and not to ignore mild symptoms at their onset.

Georgia College follows the guidelines for isolation and quarantine as outlined by the GaDPH.

Reporting Options for the University Community

Human Resources, Office of : Wednesday July 27, 2022

Georgia College recognizes that an ethical and effective work environment is essential to our continued success. We place a high priority on assuring that every member of our university community has the opportunity to convey any matter that could compromise said work environment.

We encourage everyone within the university community to report any suspected unethical behavior and/or suspected policy violation(s). These suspected violations may relate to Title IX/sexual misconduct, student conduct, employee relations, ethics & compliance, fraud, waste and/or abuse, among other concerns.

Georgia College prohibits any employee, student, or volunteer from retaliating or taking any adverse action against another employee, student, or volunteer for reporting a reasonable suspicion of sexual or physical abuse or neglect of a minor.

Please reference the attached image as a reminder of the options available to you for reporting any and all types of concerns. Thank you for helping Georgia College continue to be an environment where all members of our university community thrive!

The links below are shown in the attached .pdf and are listed below for quick access:

Georgia College's Center for Health and Social Issues partners with Community Health Care Systems to increase equitable access to healthcare

Health & Human Performance, School of : Thursday July 28, 2022

Over the past four years, Georgia College's Center for Health and Social Issues (CHSI) has been teaming up with Community Health Care Systems (CHCS) to meet the health needs of Rural Georgians. At the monthly Middle Georgia Food Bank distribution in Baldwin County's Collins P. Lee Community Center, the two organizations provided primary care health services including blood tests for cholesterol, and other lipids. During this event, CHCS also provided health education materials and available services at their locations throughout Middle Georgia. The Center for Health and Social Issues sponsored the event, covering the costs of services and the co-pays for residents. Throughout the duration of this partnership, these organizations have been able to increase equitable access to healthcare and improve health outcomes for the rural residents of Middle Georgia.

PAWS Access Temporarily Limited

Information Technology : Friday July 29, 2022

Due to a security vulnerability, PAWS access has currently been restricted to on-campus connectivity or off-campus through VPN only. While there has been no breach, USG ITS is taking immediate proactive measures.

This weekend, USG Information Technology Services will be taking Banner (PAWS) down beginning at 5 PM this afternoon (Friday) to install patches. This work is due to be completed no later than 7 AM Monday, August 1.

A notification will be posted on Unify when PAWS is once again available for on-campus/off-campus via VPN access. There will be a second round of patches next week, and deployment of those patches will then be scheduled. Off-campus access to PAWS will be restricted (except through VPN) until AFTER this second round of patches is deployed. More information will be released as it becomes available.

Faculty or staff who need access to PAWS off campus can request VPN access via the Serve Help Desk (478-445-7378) or serve@gcsu.edu.

Writing Center: Syllabus Statement & Class Visits

The Writing Center : Friday July 29, 2022

Georgia College's Writing Center is dedicated to assisting undergraduate and graduate writers across all disciplines. Writing consultants (grad & undergrad tutors) offer feedback and strategies to help students improve not only their current projects but also their writing in general. We believe that all writers can benefit from sharing work with attentive readers who are dedicated to helping writers meet their goals.

Students can reach the center via email at writing.center@gcsu.edu or schedule an appointment by visiting Unify and selecting "Scheduling with the Writing Center" from the "Start Here" tab. Fall hours start on August 22nd.

The #1 reason students use the Writing Center is that faculty and staff recommend it to them. Connect students with the Writing Center by...

- including it in your syllabus--see the attached pdf for the syllabus statement & more helpful info
- requesting a class visit or info cards/flyers for your building/office--see contact info below
- contacting the Writing Center Director (Dr. Joy Bracewell) to chat about other ways the center can support students in your courses or unit
