Alumni : Thursday September 5, 2024

Join Georgia College & State University alumnus Christopher Jackson for the newest Alumni Lifelong Learning Series Sept. 12, from 12 p.m. until 1 p.m.

Jackson is an imaginative and zealous marketing, creative and global strategic communicator. His field experience and formal education are genuinely interdisciplinary, weaving together topics such as media, culture and language communication studies. He graduated in 2023 with a Bachelor of Arts in three disciplines: mass communication, world languages & cultures and liberal studies. In May 2025, he plans to receive his Master of Arts (M.A.) in mass communication with a concentration in global strategic communication from the University of Florida.

Jackson began his work in marketing communication for Georgia College's School of Continuing and Professional Studies, working in video production and editing. Before landing his role at Tri-CoGo, he also worked in the faith-based media sector, serving as the media and communications coordinator of Gray Community Church. Jackson serves as the marketing coordinator of Tri-CoGo, the fiber internet affiliate of Tri-County Electric Membership Cooperative.

Who has the Power? Our Three Branches of Government and their evolving powers. A Constitution Week Event

College of Education : Friday September 6, 2024

The principles of separation of powers, as well as checks and balances embedded in our Constitution have been challenged in a variety of ways over the years, and most recently in the Supreme Court decision, Trump v. the United States. How do we manage the power between our three branches and ensure there are checks and balances among them? Join us for this timely and important conversation.

This is a community event as part of Georgia College & State University's Constitution Week. Students, faculty, staff and members of the local community are welcome to attend. Audience questions are encouraged.

American Red Cross Safety Certification (CPR) classes for employees has returned for fall 2024 - Empowering

Human Resources, Office of : Monday September 9, 2024

If you have ever been curious about becoming CPR certified, Georgia College & State University Well-being is excited to partner with the American Red Cross and our very own Marie Puckett on making this a reality! The one-hour, in-person skills session will take place on Thurs., Oct. 10 and Thurs., Nov. 7 from 10 until 11 a.m. in the Pat Peterson Museum Education Room in Russell Library.

IMAGINE 2030: Empower - GCSU Well-being strives to serve as a cornerstone for our employees as we promote events like these to foster an environment that encourages and supports holistic wellness, nurturing connectedness, resilience, well-being and the desire to lead and thrive.

This is a two-part certification training.

After signing up by selecting a date that works for you (Oct. 10 or Nov. 7) for the one-hour, in-person portion of this training, you'll receive additional details regarding the requirements for obtaining this two-year Red Cross Certification.

Registration is capped at 12 participants per in-person session. Since spaces are limited - Please only register if you are committed to completing both steps.

Step #1: Marie Puckett will email you instructions and a link to access an American Red Cross online course. This course takes only a few hours to complete and should be done at your own pace prior to the in-person skills session Oct. 10 or Nov. 7.

A course completion certificate is required for participation in the in-person session. After you successfully complete the online course, Marie Puckett will receive a notification via the American Red Cross.

Step #2: Attend your selected in-person skills session, a one-hour commitment, for the final portion of obtaining your CPR certification course. The skills session demonstrates hands-on competence of several skills you learned in the online course. There will be a quick lesson review followed by practice.

Hands-on skills covered in the session include:

- Choking
- CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation)
- Use of an AED
- Administering Naloxone
- Safe removal of gloves

If you register for an in-person session on Oct. 10 or Nov. 7 but do not successfully complete the online training portion and obtain a course completion certification, you will not be able to attend and obtain the certification offered. We're announcing this one month-plus in advance to give you plenty of time to complete the online portion of the course on your own time and at your own pace.

We look forward to you joining us on Oct. 10 or Nov. 7 after you have completed the online training required to obtain this safety certification from the American Red Cross. We hope that after only a couple of hours of your time, you feel equipped with knowledge that could help save someone's life--now that's empowering!

If you have any questions, please feel free to email wellbeing@gcsu.edu.

Eminem's "Lose Yourself" as Campaign Anthem - Three candidates. Two parties. One song.

School of Continuing and Professional Studies : Tuesday September 10, 2024

In 2015, Republican Ben Carson kicked off his campaign for the U.S. presidency with a concert at the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts in Detroit. Selected of God, a local choir famous for their appearance in a Chrysler Super Bowl commercial, delivered a powerful gospel rendition of Eminem's "Lose Yourself."

Fast forward to just a day before the 2020 election, Democratic candidate Joe Biden released an ad titled "One Opportunity," also featuring Eminem's iconic track. In August 2023, Republican candidate and entrepreneur Vivek Ramaswamy picked up a mic and surprised the crowd at the Iowa State Fair with an impromptu performance of the song.

Three candidates. Two parties. One song.

In this talk, Dr. Dana Gorzelany-Mostak will analyze each politician's engagement with "Lose Yourself," and their attempts to strategically align themselves with various facets of Eminem's identity as outsider, rebel, shapeshifter and poet, thereby crafting their own presidential personas.

GCSU kicks off celebrations ahead of Flannery O'Connor's centennial year

O'Connor Institute : Wednesday September 11, 2024

Ninety scholars and up to 200 enthusiasts nationwide are about to descend upon Georgia College & State University's campus and Andalusia in Milledgeville, where Flannery O'Connor spent her later years.

They come for a free, four-day conference Thursday through Sunday, Sept. 12-15, hosted by the university's Flannery O'Connor Institute for the Humanities. The gathering begins a countdown to the popular Southern writer's 100th birthday in March 2025 and months of special activities.

"We're thrilled to welcome conference attendees from all over the country to see how Georgia College & State University's liberal arts mission cultivates collaborative opportunities among disciplines on campus and across the community," said Dr. Holley Roberts, interim provost and vice president for Academic Affairs.

"Through the lens of studying Flannery O'Connor's work," she said, "we open doors to many interdisciplinary fields for students to explore—from grant writing to oral history to graphic design. By stewarding the historic home of Flannery O'Connor, Andalusia, our archival holdings of O'Connor's work and our public liberal arts mission, we see the humanities thrive."

The conference, "Flannery O'Connor's Second Century: Looking Forward, Looking Back," is filled with talks by expert scholars and nightly keynote addresses.

Keynotes feature historic preservation architect Karen M. Gravel of Atlanta; Southern studies author Dr. Lisa Hinrichsen from the University of Arkansas; author and activist Dr. Mab Segrest from Connecticut College; and poet Mark Jarman from Vanderbilt University.

An opening reception will be 6 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 12, in the Andalusia Interpretive Center, following Gavel's presentation.

"We're very excited to bring over 90 scholars to Milledgeville from around the country," said Dr. Katie Simon, interim executive director of the O'Connor Institute at Georgia College.

"As we near her 100th birthday," Simon said, "we're amazed at how much Flannery O'Connor's work speaks to our present time. We also find—as do Ethan and Maya Hawke in their new film 'Wildcat'—much that is entertaining and brilliant in her work."

Other speakers include writers and professors from Georgia College's Creative Writing program.

There will be readings, presentations and resources for those interested in studying more about O'Connor and her work. Sessions by K-12 English teachers, creative writers, Georgia College students, oral historians, local history enthusiasts and naturalists can be found on the attached schedule.

Two book releases will be celebrated during the conference, as well, and there will be a self-guided walking tour at Andalusia Farm with a focus on native plants.

"Georgia College has a unique responsibility to support those doing serious work on our most famous graduate," said Dr. Bruce Gentry, conference organizer and O'Connor Institute fellow at Georgia College.

"I'm proud to have this conference supporting serious scholarship," he said. "I hope it sparks increased interest in and study of O'Connor on campus."

This conference is open to the public and free with a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. To register for the conference registration, please visit this webpage. For more information, see the this page.

Student Success and Retention Series: Student Success for Generation Z

Enrollment Management : Thursday September 12, 2024

Workshop Overview:

This workshop dives into the unique dynamics that shape the student success journey for Generation Z. As digital natives with distinct values, learning styles, and expectations, Gen Z requires new approaches to engagement and support in academic settings. Participants will explore the nuances of Gen Z's transition from high school to college, their use of technology, and the evolving educational landscape. The session will highlight how to effectively address their learning preferences, short attention spans, and desire for multimedia-rich, real-world learning experiences.

Through interactive discussions, attendees will gain insights into building connection-based learning environments, fostering motivation, and addressing the mental health and social concerns that influence Gen Z's academic success. The workshop will also explore the importance of community engagement and work-based learning (WBL) in retaining Gen Z students. In addition, we will discuss strategies for employer engagement, ensuring Gen Z students are equipped with the skills and opportunities needed for successful transitions into the workforce.

Legal experts discuss recent Supreme Court cases

Provost & Academic Affairs, Office of the : Thursday September 12, 2024

This year's Supreme Court Review will feature at least three major court cases from the recent term. Tackling those cases include Georgia State University's Ivy White, a business law professor, Emory University School of Law's Matt Roessing, a legal writing professor and the Honorable Wade Padgett, a Georgia Court of Appeals judge.

The event will start with an overview of the Supreme Court by Georgia College & State University's Jehan El-Jourbagy, a business law professor, and then each panelist will discuss the facts, ruling and impact of a case. Case topics include social media, the second amendment and presidential immunity. A question and answer session will then be followed by a reception with food from Chick-fil-A.

Legends of Honors with Dr. Sunita Manian

Honors College : Thursday September 12, 2024

The 2024-2025 Legends of Honors Series—our Zoom-based programs for students, alumni and friends of the Honors College—kicks off with a presentation by Dr. Sunita Manian on Wed., Sept. 25, at 6 p.m. Dr. Manian has taught Honors courses for many years and has served a term on the Honors Faculty Council. The title of her presentation—“I thought I was the only boy who liked boys’: Experiences of Queer Youth in India”—relates to a comment made by a young man, Sagun, speaking about his sense of isolation as he tried to process his same-sex attraction as a young boy growing up in a small town in India. In her presentation, Dr. Manian will talk about sexual and gender diversity in Indian traditions historically and compare that to perceptions, attitudes and experiences in contemporary India. Through the voices of young people such as Sagun, she will share her research on what it means to be queer in India today.

Please register via the QR code in the flier or this embedded link and the Honors College will send you the Zoom link and a timely reminder.

Georgia Court of Appeals Appellate Arguments | Sept. 18 at 10:30 a.m.

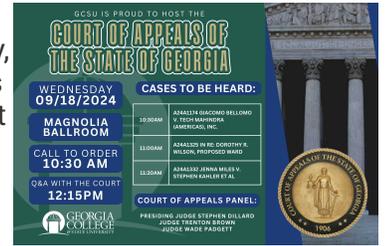

President, Office of the : Friday September 13, 2024

We are honored to host the Georgia Court of Appeals on our campus on Wednesday, Sept. 18 – something that does not happen often, as the court customarily holds its arguments in the Nathan Deal Justice Center Building in downtown Atlanta adjacent to the State Capitol.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. in Magnolia Ballroom, appellate arguments in three cases will be heard for 30 minutes each for a total of 90 minutes. After the hearings conclude, a Q&A session for students will begin where you will have an opportunity to ask the judges questions pertaining to their career paths, the process of hearing cases, how court works, etc. (The judges will not discuss the cases that have just been heard.) Breaks will take place between each session, giving you the ability to come and go as you please and as your classes allow.

I hope you will join me for an interesting morning of hearings and a unique opportunity to see the law in action!

Sexual Misconduct & Prevention Workshop

: Wednesday September 18, 2024

The Office of Inclusion & Belonging will present the "Sexual Misconduct & Prevention" Workshop on Wednesday, Oct. 2, at 3:30 p.m. It will be held in the Library Conference Room 302.

Registration Link: <https://forms.office.com/r/rCegUtKgts>

According to data from the National Institute of Justice, one in five college women and one in 16 men will experience some form of non-consensual sexual activity. The widespread impact of sexual violence on students presents an urgent and pressing challenge for our nation's campuses. As leaders, educators and professionals at Georgia College & State University, you play a vital role in fostering safe and supportive environments for our students and colleagues.

Jackie Watts, GCSU Title IX coordinator, will address sexual misconduct, prevention and response strategies. The goal is to raise awareness and create a safer, more respectful environment where everyone feels secure, valued and respected.

Participants will leave this workshop with an enhanced awareness of sexual misconduct, best practices in response strategies and the tools to promote a campus culture of safety and respect for all. Registration for the workshop is required.

Eminem's "Lose Yourself" as Campaign Anthem - Three candidates. Two parties. One song.

School of Continuing and Professional Studies : Monday September 23, 2024

In 2015, Republican Ben Carson kicked off his campaign for the U.S. presidency with a concert at the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts in Detroit. Selected of God, a local choir famous for their appearance in a Chrysler Super Bowl commercial, delivered a powerful gospel rendition of Eminem's "Lose Yourself."

Fast forward to just a day before the 2020 election, Democratic candidate Joe Biden released an ad titled "One Opportunity," also featuring Eminem's iconic track. In August 2023, Republican candidate and entrepreneur Vivek Ramaswamy picked up a mic and surprised the crowd at the Iowa State Fair with an impromptu performance of the song.

Three candidates. Two parties. One song.

In this talk, Dr. Dana Gorzelany-Mostak will analyze each politician's engagement with "Lose Yourself," and their attempts to strategically align themselves with various facets of Eminem's identity as outsider, rebel, shapeshifter and poet, thereby crafting their own presidential personas.

Sexual Misconduct & Prevention Workshop

: Tuesday September 24, 2024

The Office of Inclusion & Belonging will present the "Sexual Misconduct & Prevention" Workshop on Wednesday, Oct. 2, at 3:30 p.m. It will be held in the Library Conference Room 302.

Registration Link: <https://forms.office.com/r/rCegUtKgts>

According to data from the National Institute of Justice, one in five college women and one in 16 men will experience some form of non-consensual sexual activity. The widespread impact of sexual violence on students presents an urgent and pressing challenge for our nation's campuses. As leaders, educators and professionals at Georgia College & State University, you play a vital role in fostering safe and supportive environments for our students and colleagues.

Jackie Watts, GCSU Title IX coordinator, will address sexual misconduct, prevention and response strategies. The goal is to raise awareness and create a safer, more respectful environment where everyone feels secure, valued and respected.

Participants will leave this workshop with an enhanced awareness of sexual misconduct, best practices in response strategies and the tools to promote a campus culture of safety and respect for all. Registration for the workshop is required.

Postponed until Nov. 20 - GCSU Creative Writing Program Visiting Writers Series: GCSU English alumnus novelist Stephen Hundley joins MFA alumna and journalist and essayist Denechia Powell-Ingabire

English, Department of : Monday September 30, 2024

Visiting Writers and Georgia College & State University alumni Stephen Hundley joins Denechia "Neesha" Powell-Ingabire to present on Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Pat Peterson Museum Education Room.

Stephen Hundley, '13, is the author of "The Aliens Will Come to Georgia First" (University of North Georgia Press, 2023) and "Bomb Island" (Hub City Press, 2024). His stories and poems have appeared in Prairie Schooner, Cream City Review, The Greensboro Review and elsewhere. Hundley serves as a fiction editor for Driftwood Press and book reviews editor for The Southeast Review.

He holds an M.A. from Clemson University, MFA from the University of Mississippi and is completing a Ph.D. in English at Florida State University, where he is writing a book about the feral horses of Cumberland Island.

Denechia "Neesha" Powell-Ingabire, '22, is a coastal Georgia-born-and-raised movement journalist, essayist and community and cultural organizer living in Atlanta/occupied Muscogee territory. She reports on the justice movements of the Black, queer and trans communities to which she belongs and writes essays to recover her own history and the histories of her ancestors and their ancestral homes.

Powell-Ingabire's writings have been published in various online and print publications, including Harper's Bazaar, the Oxford American, Scalawag and VICE. She recently graduated with a MFA in creative writing from Georgia College. Her forthcoming debut book, "Come By Here: A Memoir in Essays from Georgia's Geechee Coast" (Hub City Press, out on Sept. 24, 2024), chips away at coastal Georgia's facade of beaches and golden marshes to recover undertold Black history alongside personal and family stories. The book traces a genealogy of systemic racial violence while paying homage to the area's long history of Black resistance and culture keeping.

New Grant opportunity: Implementation Research to Improve Early Language and Literacy Outcomes

Deal Center : Monday September 30, 2024

The wait is over! The Implementation Research to Improve Early Language and Literacy Outcomes Grant application is now open. This funding opportunity is designed to support innovative research that enhances early language and literacy outcomes across Georgia, with awards of up to $50,000 available to qualifying projects.

Mark your calendars for Oct. 18 at 10 a.m. We're hosting an informational webinar to discuss the Implementation Research to Improve Early Language and Literacy Outcomes grant and explore the fundamentals of Implementation Science. Learn how this grant can support your work and discover the essentials of Implementation Science from guest speaker Dr. Sycarah Fisher from the University of Georgia. Check out her bio online. And don't miss this chance to get ahead on your application. Webinar information is in the attached RFA and on our website.

Submit your application online now through Nov. 18, 2024.

This is a unique opportunity to contribute to Georgia's literacy efforts by advancing research in implementation science. We encourage you to apply and help spread the word to those who may be interested in applying for this grant. If you have any questions, please feel free to reach out to Joseph Wenke, grant administrator, at joseph.wenke@gcsu.edu. We look forward to receiving your proposals and seeing the incredible work that will come from this initiative.

Flannery O'Connor and Milledgeville: Collecting the Past presentation

O'Connor Institute : Monday September 30, 2024

The Flannery O'Connor Institute for the Humanities will host a second symposium in support of its oral history project. Undergraduate students interviewed community members who lived in Milledgeville during the heart of Flannery O'Connor's writing career (1951-1964) to provide important insights on life in rural Georgia, and they will share these highlights. The project has gathered information regarding experiences with class, gender, race, disability, the Cold War, religious beliefs, commercialism and old/new South mythologies in 1950s rural Georgia. All are welcome to attend and learn more about getting involved with this project, nominating someone to be interviewed and listening to the oral histories.
