

About

Held annually, the newest class of GCSU students participate in community service projects that introduce them to the local community.

Purpose

To connect students to resources in the community and to learn about organizations they can volunteer with during their time as students.

Started in 2018, the aim of GCSU Gives Day is to introduce new student to the community through service projects. In past years, the incoming freshman class of volunteers have helped spruce up playgrounds at elementary schools, clean up at the Oconee River Greenway and Lockerly Arboretum, and participated in activities with residents at the Georgia War Veterans Home.

To align student career and academic interests, first-year students are assigned to volunteer sites based on their first-year academic course.
