Biography

Breanna Elizabeth Thompson, a native of Hampton, Georgia, has been enveloped in music from a very young age. Inspired by her mother, Kristie Thompson, who has always been her number one supporter in music and whom shared the depth, connection, and love for music that Breanna has today. Her musical journey began when she joined band in 4th grade. As she progressed, her skills, knowledge, and love for music blossomed, eventually leading her to pursue a career in music.

Breanna started her collegiate journey at Point University as a double major in Vocal and Trumpet Performance. Later she transferred over to Georgia college & State University to study music therapy but shortly changed to Music Education. She has since thrived At Georgia college & State University and has even become active in the GCSU community.

Beyond the school work, Breanna demonstrates her commitment to music education by teaching students and engaging in professional development activities. Breanna is set to graduate from GCSU in May 2025 and will continue her studies in Master of Arts in Teaching program, with plans to complete her degree in May of 2027. She is forever grateful for the steadfast love and support of her parents Keith and Kristie, her fiancé Adam, grandparents, friends, family and mentors, who have played a significant role in her journey towards becoming a devoted music educator.
