Flannery O'Connor's hometown is a literary-filled escape.

Andalusia Farms is the home of Flannery O'Connor and where she wrote many of her most famous literary works.

I take a wrong turn just outside of Eatonton, Georgia, when I am only 30 minutes or so away from my destination. My map reroutes, and I dutifully follow the directions... right down a gravel road. For nearly 2 miles, I am white-knuckling, turning down my podcast, sitting up straighter and inching closer to the steering wheel. I laugh when I realize this scene is reminiscent of my favorite Flannery O'Connor short story, "A Good Man is Hard to Find."

Andalusia Interpretive Center houses artifacts and artwork from O'Connor's life.
